Overview

Tangible Play, Inc. is the manufacturer of Osmo Learning Systems. Osmo is a unique combination of computer vision and manipulatives that changes the way students interact with technology in the classroom. Osmo's reflector allows the tablet's camera to mirror the table and see what students are working on and creating. The camera is powered by Osmo's pioneering Reflective AI technology, which can read physical movements and real-world environments, translating them on the screen. The programs then cleverly engage the students; encouraging, prompting, and suggesting as they work and create in their own space.
