Biles at home like us, unhappy about it

As tough as the unknown is, it's what she knows that's proving to be the hardest part for Simone Biles.

The reigning Olympic gymnastics champion had planned to compete at the Tokyo Games this summer and then retire. Everything in her life the past three years was built around that. Her training, which competitions she did, even the work she does with sponsors.

Now it's all changed. The plan she had is no longer possible.

"Mentally I was kind of emptying my gas tank. I was ready to go in three months and ready to be done. That's what I was striving for," Biles told USA TODAY Sports on Wednesday morning. "Now we have to take our foot off the gas. It's, 'Whoa, whoa, wait. Not three months, now it's going to be 15. So sorry, figure out your training schedule from here on out.'

"For a lot of us athletes, that's a big adjustment," she said. "So I'm just trying to figure out what my training schedule looks like from here on out and adjusting to that."

Biles supports the International Olympic Committee's decision to postpone the Tokyo Games until July 2021. Making sure everyone - athletes and spectators alike – are safe and healthy is what's most important, and there was no way to ensure that with the COVID-19 pandemic still raging throughout much

And while the 23-year-old said she is taking things "a day at a time," she does plan to resume training with coaches Cecile and Laurent Landi when she's

"I'll go in with Cecile and Laurent and figure out the right schedule for the upcoming year so that we can prepare for that. And just play it by ear," Biles said.

On the day the IOC announced it was postponing the Games, Cecile Landi said on Twitter, "We will regroup and

'replan' to get back strong for 2021." Although Biles has not been in the gym since last Thursday, and facilities in Montgomery County, Texas, are closed until at least April 30, she has been texting and FaceTiming with the home workout. Which is a good thing, because Biles did not have a bunch of equipment or exercise DVDs at her house.

They've also sent her a "hefty" at-

"I don't own any weights. No gym equipment. No nothing," she said. "My sister was like, 'Do you have a dumbbell?' I'm like, 'Why would I have a dumbbell, Adria? It makes no sense. Do you see me in the gym lifting weights? No, I lift my body!'

The physical demands of gymnastics are relentless, and even a few days off can set a gymnast back weeks. When Aly Raisman came back for the Rio Olympics, she spent much of her first year just doing conditioning work.

But Biles is blessed with so much natural ability that her skills have always come back quickly. After taking more than a year off following Rio, Biles was doing her old skills - and some tough new ones, like her double-twisting, double somersault dismount off beam within three months.

The mental challenge of the time off and having to add an extra year onto her timeline will be tougher.

"Physically, our coaches will get us ready and we'll be fine to go," she said. "But mentally, I think that's going to be the hardest for any of us athletes in this position."

Especially when COVID-19 affects every aspect of life.

Biles hasn't hung out with her parents in two weeks, an unheard-of occurrence in a family so tight-knit it gathers for Sunday dinners each week.

Instead, she keeps herself occupied by cleaning and walking her dog. She's not good at binge-watching - "I'll watch 20 minutes and then get up and I'll start cleaning or do something else" - though she was captivated by "Tiger King."

Mostly, though, she's trying to be a normal person, an adjustment in and of itself for the greatest gymnast the sport has ever seen.

"I tell my friends, I don't really know what to do because I've never not done anything. In my whole entire life," Biles said. "Even on my time off I took (after Rio), I was traveling, I was doing appearances, I was doing stuff with sponsors, I was meeting kids at gyms and doing stuff like that.

"Now, we literally have to sit at home. I don't really know who I am as a person, besides an athlete."

But the athlete will be ready to go once the world reopens.

Indoor putting devices suddenly all the rage

Adam Schupak Columnist Golfweek USA TODAY NETWORK

I prefer to hold a putter - I've got them in every room of my house – but I don't actually hit many putts, in large part because neither the carpeting nor the flooring is particularly putting friendly.

In short, it would be counterproductive to work on my stroke here. Luckily for me, I've also got a real grass practice putting green, not in my backyard, but within walking distance for those times when I feel the need to stroke some putts.

But now, due to the coronavirus and current stay-at-home guidelines to minimize its effect, that putting green is closed and many of us are hunkering

Still, we need our golf fix, right?

That has led to a run on indoor putting devices (websites note limited supply). Everyone from PGA Tour pros Dustin Johnson (and fiancée Paulina) to Patrick Rodgers to fellow media members Amanda Balionis and Kira Dixon have posted videos of themselves sharpening their short sticks inside.

There are several indoor putting devices to choose from if you scour the internet, including models from Eyeline Golf, PuttOut Golf, SKLZ and Birdie Ball, just to name a few. They are all selling for roughly the same price, topping out at $169.99 unless you're looking for a high-end synthetic turf model, in which case expect to dig deeper into your wallet.

I'm using the Perfect Practice Putting

Green Mat, which has already proclaimed itself "the 2020 Social Distancing Golf Product of the Year" and has a hashtag I can get behind: #AlwaysBe-

I'm enjoying it for a variety of reasons. Assembly was idiot-proof. Simply unroll the strip of carpet, connect together the four-piece wooden ball return, slide the backstop in the appropriate slot and you're good to go.

I had one of these contraptions back in the day and they have come a long way. For starters, no electricity required and it's portable, so I can put it away easily or move it to another room if I choose.

I like the measurement tape along the sides so I know if I'm practicing from 5 feet or 6 feet, and the lines help me groove a straight back, straight through

Also, you practice putting up a slight incline, and so I get immediate feedback if I decelerate, which I've been known to do. There is also a regulation hole to aim at on the left and a smaller hole that is quite the challenge on the right.

Why the smaller hole? The theory is if you "aim small, you miss small." Most important, it gives a consistent, smooth, straight putt. My wife and I have had some heated games of P-A-R since the putting mat arrived a week ago on Monday (after work hours for her, of course. This is called research for me!). At one point, she made the comment that this was the most she had practiced in a long time.

Lo and behold, we squeezed in a late nine holes on a real course after work two days later and she made everything she looked at – nothing but foam noo-

"I may come out of this coronavirus thing a better putter," she said.

To paraphrase Lt. Col. Nathan Jessup, played to perfection by Jack Nicholson in "A Few Good Men," that is a truth that I cannot handle.

Editor's note: While this year's Masters won't be played in April due to risks associated with the coronavirus pandemic, we think Tiger Woods' historic come-from-behind victory in 2019 is worth revisiting on the anniversary. Here's a look at some of the key moments you might have forgotten in the voices of the players and caddie Joe LaCava.

In a charming corner of the Cathedral of Pines on Masters Sunday, Webb Simpson somehow took in a peaceful moment amid the roars ripping about the hallowed grounds of Augusta National Golf Club.

Standing on the tee of the final hole that is the sublime but precarious Amen Corner, Simpson, playing in the penultimate group and still very much in pursuit of the green jacket with six holes to play, glanced over to the green of the famous 12th hole.

There stood the resurrected figure of of Augusta National, maybe the most famous picture in golf," said Simpson, who 22 years earlier watched Woods play a practice round ahead of his historic Masters triumph in 1997. "I told myself, 'You're competing against Tiger Woods in the Masters. This is a childhood dream.' That's when as a player, you remove yourself for a second, and you take in the moment."

On a Sunday at Augusta National unlike any other to the players who witnessed it, memorable moments were abundant throughout the sensory explosion that is home to the first major championship of the year.

Just two years removed from telling fellow green jackets that he thought his career was over, Woods spectacularly capped his latest comeback from a shattered image, addiction to prescription painkillers and a persistent troublesome back by becoming a Masters champion again.

Woods, who won 14 majors in his first 46 attempts as a pro, hadn't won a major in 28 starts. But he got in contention in the previous year's British Open at Carnoustie before tying for sixth and finished runner-up to Brooks Koepka in the 2018 PGA Championship.

A few weeks later, he won the Tour Championship, his first PGA Tour victory since 2013. Seven months later, at 43, he became the second oldest to win the Masters, trailing just Jack Nicklaus, who won the 1986 Masters at 46.

In his run-up to the Masters, which he previously won in 1997, 2001, 2002 and 2005, Woods teed up hints that he was ready to win a major again as he played well in five starts. The week before the Masters, he made a reconnaissance trip to Augusta National and shot 65 with a three-putt bogey on the first his only blemish. When he arrived at Augusta National for the 83rd Masters, Woods knew he could win.

In the final round, six players held at least a share of the lead: Woods, Francesco Molinari, Patrick Cantlay, Dustin Johnson, Xander Schauffele and

"It's his Sunday red on the 12th green Koepka. Koepka had won three of the previous seven major championships.

> Schauffele, who joked that "someone stole the thunder," had his chances on the back nine to claim his first green jacket but finished in a tie for second. His lasting memory from the 2019 Masters was Woods.

> "No one thought he could do it. Except for him, probably," he said. "I totally forgot about golf and just witnessed history. When I think back to that tournament, I think of Tiger winning."

Leading into Sunday

On the Sunday before Masters week, Woods, Joe LaCava, his caddie, and Rob McNamara, vice president of TGR Ventures, spent a peaceful evening on the front nine at Augusta National. Woods only chipped and putted during his nearly three hours on the course. After a practice round Monday, Woods didn't play on a rainy Tuesday. He completed his prep with another practice round Wednesday.

LaCava: Personally I wasn't quite sure he had enough tournament rounds. We had a pretty light schedule going in. I think he knew he needed to save up some energy, and it was more important for him to be rested and get his back worked on versus playing tournament golf. But I think we needed one or two more tournaments to be a little sharper going in. But to his credit he did chipping and putting on Sunday night on the front nine for almost three hours, which I think was good. It's nice to be out there by yourself to do your own thing for three hours. I think that got him in the right frame of mind. Getting rained out on Tuesday was a blessing. Saved some wear and tear.

Woods: Going into the Masters, I felt that my swing had finally turned the corner because I was trying to make sure that I could hit a high draw and call upon it with driver, 3-wood, 5-wood, any club in the bag. I somehow found it. The short game came around, I found something in my grip there, and the pieces started coming together. And on those greens, to be able to take some of the slope out with curve, even around the greens, spin the ball either left-toright or right-to-left and flatten those out, it was fun. I had it right where I needed to be.

Before the final round

Due to the forecast calling for thunderstorms Sunday, tee times were moved up, with the first group going off at 7:30 a.m.; the final group at 9:21 a.m.

Woods awoke at 4 a.m. to get ready. Players were grouped in threesomes, another unusual occurrence. Woods, who opened with rounds of 70-68-67, was in the final group with Tony Finau and Molinari, the reigning British Open champion. Molinari was paired with Woods in the final round at Carnoustie when the Italian won the Claret Jug in 2018. Molinari was 13 under par and held a two-shot lead over Woods and Finau.

In the group ahead was Koepka, Simpson and Ian Poulter.

Woods: I had to wake up a little bit earlier and get into my routine. I think that having the guys who have never won the Masters now get a chance to have a quicker turnaround, not have to sit on that lead and think about it far into the afternoon, I thought it was advantageous to the guys who haven't won. But I hadn't been in this experience, either. I hadn't been there before, and I hadn't won coming from behind. So there were a lot of new things, and we were all having to go through it together. I'm going to have to go earn it.

The early holes of the final round

Woods warmed up well but ran into trouble on the second hole and had to lay up after his drive. He salvaged a par after a solid approach on his third shot and a two-putt par. But he confronted problems again starting at the fourth with a bogey and another at the fifth, which he bogeyed each round. Walking to the sixth tee, Woods trailed by three.

Woods: I played (No.) 5 awful for the week and played it in, what, 20 shots? I had to reset and try and see if I can get it back to under par at the turn. I know that (Molinari) was playing extremely well. There's a bunch of guys that have a chance, but if I'm within six of the lead -I've always felt this - if I'm within six of the lead starting the back nine on Sunday, I've got a shot at it.

LaCava: I'm always going to be the positive guy. Let's just say he plays (the fifth) 1 over and all of a sudden he wins by four or five shots. It's in the back of my mind to go there this year and hit a few more tee shots on that hole and get him a little more comfortable off the tee. He hits a 3-wood the last day and he still makes bogey. But that was a bad break. He hit it up on that ridge, and it was a tough two-putt.

Woods: I was able to play my way back into it and a couple guys made a few mistakes there at 12, and lo and behold, I'm part of the lead.

Right before the turn

After falling behind by three after his bogey on the fifth hole, Woods made par on the sixth and got a huge lift on the par-4 seventh. First by sticking his approach to nearly tap-in range for a birdie, then seeing his children for the first time as he headed to the eighth tee. He kept his momentum going with a birdie on the eighth and then faced the toughest putt of the final round – a 65-footer from the top tier on the ninth hole to a pin on the lower tier. Woods navigated the slippery expanse to tap-in range, which led to mini-fist pumps as he walked to the cup to complete his par. Then the back nine awaited.

LaCava: The ninth was huge. He hits it way back to that top shelf. Way back left, the third tier. All the way back there. The pin is front-left. And the funny thing is when we finished up on Wednesday with JT (Justin Thomas) and Fred (Couples), Tiger dropped a ball and they had a little closest to (the pin contest). He dropped the ball a foot from where he hit it on Sunday. And the pin was a foot from where it was on Sunday. Now listen, I don't think that's ever an easy two-putt. But it's certainly easier on Wednesday with nothing on the line than Sunday. I think it helped a little bit.

Woods: That putt, unfortunately, I've had it - fortunately and unfortunately -I've had that putt before. I have left it on the middle shelf, and so that's obviously not where you want to be. But also, it's very easy to putt the ball over the green, or actually down the front edge of the green. The good thing that I had going for me was at that time, the wind was a little bit into me, so I had a little bit of a backboard with that wind being slightly into me. But it's being committed to hitting that ball up there into that fringe, or near the fringe. Only problem is if you get it too far right, it gets a little steeper and picks up a lot of speed. The conservative approach is to play it a little bit left of the hole and you know you take your 10-, 15-footer and move on with a four or five. But I decided to take a little bit more of a risk knowing that I had a little bit of a backboard with the wind.

The 12th hole

This tiny hole - at 155 yards the shortest at Augusta National - changed the Community newspapers still get the job done!

Ninety percent (90%) of people responding to a 2018 readership survey said that their community newspaper informs them. And 73 percent said that their hometown paper provides valuable local shopping and advertising information. The independent poll was conducted by Susquehanna Polling and Research.

In addition, 64 percent said they read a community newspaper either in print or online. When it comes to advertising, readers are most likely to trust and respond to ads they see in their community newspaper.

According to the survey, community newspapers rate as the most popular advertising medium when it comes to making buying and shopping decisions at local mer-

Respondents rated the importance of access to public notices a mean score of 5.72 on a 7-point scale. Even non-readers of community newspapers agree that access to public notices is important, with a mean score of 5.66.

When it comes to the coming mid-term elections, 84 percent of community newspaper readers are very likely to vote this year, compared with only 61 percent of non-readers. Plus, 77 percent of community newspaper readers say they voted in the last election in their local community, compared with only 61 percent of non-read-

The survey also notes that community newspapers are cited by respondents as not only the most common go-to source to learn about political candidates running in local elections at 65 percent very or somewhat often, but also the most trusted with a 4.38 mean score on a 7-point scale. Additionally, 81 percent of community newspaper readers rely on local newspapers to learn about local candidates, far more than any other source. On the issue of trust, even non-readers of community newspapers trust community newspapers more than other sources, rating their overall trustworthiness a 3.71 mean score on a 7-point—higher than any other news source.

Sixty-four percent of survey respondents said they read a community newspaper either in print or online. Other sources of news did not fare so well: 8% radio and satellite radio, 14% internet, 4% social media.

When respondents were asked if they read a newspaper that is specific to their community, 64 percent said yes. Of those who answered yes, 74 percent said they look forward to reading their community newspaper, and 71 percent said they rely on it for local news and

When asked how many friends, colleagues, co-workers or those in the household get to share the local paper, 66 percent said they did share. In Texas the average is 2.7 readers per household.

SO NOW THAT YOU KNOW THE TRUTH... Why aren't you reading and/or advertising in your hometown newspaper? Call us today at 903-856-6629.

Pepper: Grind two handfuls of dried chili peppers into a fine powder and mix with diatomaceous earth. Diatomaceous earth can be found at most hardware and gardening stores. Sprinkle mixture over the entire garden area. This mixture works in two ways. The chili peppers contain capsaicin, which has the same effects as the citrus oil methods above. Diatomaceous earth is extremely abrasive to insects. It cuts their exterior coating, leaving their insides exposed. The powder then dehydrates the insects. This pesticide works on all bugs but works especially well on fleas, ants and bed bugs.

Pre-mixed Organic Pesticides:

If do-it-yourself methods aren't your thing, plenty of organic pre-mixed options are available. Highest rated brands are EcoSmart, Garden Safe, and Organic Laboratories. Each company offers products made from all-natural ingredients that are safe for use around humans and animals.

EcoSmart products are made from essential oils like the ones used in the DIY methods above which kill and repel insects. Half-gallon bottles of EcoSmart Organic Pest Control can be purchased for around $30 on Amazon but can be found at a much lower price in some gardening departments of hardware stores. This product comes with a sprayer and does not need to be mixed with water.

Garden Safe does not disclose ingredients in their products, but they are certified organic and claim to be safe for use around birds, pets, humans, and beneficial insects, such as bees. Garden Safe is far less expensive than EcoSmart products. A 16oz bottle of Garden Safe B.t. Worm & Caterpillar can be purchased for $20 on Amazon or in some hardware stores. One bottle makes up to 32 gallons of pesticide.

Organic Laboratories sprays are made from fish oil and other fatty oils. The oils smother insects in the treated area, while being safe for all other life forms. Bottles in the 32oz size make up to 10 gallons of insecticide and can be purchased for $15-20 at Lowe's, Home Depot, or online, making it the most product for your money.

Whether you choose to make your own or purchase pre-made pesticides, maintenance is required to achieve the results desired. To ensure insects are no longer an issue, any method listed here should be used once per month in conjunction with good gardening practices.

Spare the hay, spoil the cows

By DI DUNCAN

news@campcountynow.com

It's no secret that farming is expensive. Between costs of equipment, livestock, and feed, it can be difficult for farmers to keep up-especially when hay prices rise. While we can't do much about equipment or livestock costs, there are things we can do to mitigate the effect of hay prices. Finding alternate food sources and reducing feed waste could help you lessen the cost of feeding your cows

ALTERNATE FOOD SOURCES

Limited availability of hay has led many farmers to find cheaper, more accessible alternatives and fillers. One of the most popular options is corn silage. Corn silage is a very digestible, high nutrient crop that if often very beneficial for cattle. Not only is it affordable, but it can be more nutrient rich and filling than the hay found in your area. Some farmers have even noticed visible differences in their cattle after feeding corn silage long term. Noted changes include a healthier weight, a better looking coat, and longer lasting fullness. Aside from corn silage, beet pulp and tailings, corn stalks, soybean hulls, and wheat middlings are popular fillers.

REDUCING FEED WASTE

In addition to use of fillers or alternatives, reducing spillage and waste could save you hundreds of dollars over time. Conventional hay rings allow cows to pull hay through the bars while dropping mouthfuls of hay onto the ground to be trampled or mildew. Every mouthful lost is money wasted. Fortunately, there are other options, most of which are relatively low in cost.

Conserver feeders have become very popular for their claims of reducing waste by over 30%. Conserver feeders are essentially bell-shaped hay rings. The width at the bottom of the feeder allows cows to eat as they normally would, and the hay that is dropped falls back into the feeder, rather than on the ground. These work well for diets of strictly hay. For alternative feeds or processed hay, feed bunks are a better option.

Feed bunks are typically eight to ten feet long and are made of a tubular frame and a trough. Feed bunks work well because of the trough design. Feed troughs are tapered inward at the bottom, keeping feed from becoming too spread out to be accessible. Feed bunks typically come in three different materials: metal, plastic, and concrete.

Metal feed bunks are constructed from large pipes that are cut to create troughs. The ends of the cut pipe are plated to seal the ends and then placed on a metal frame. They're too heavy for a cow to move, but very easy for a farmer to move with a tractor. They're also considerably more durable than plastic and concrete versions. On average, metal feed bunks cost around $200. The price is higher than that of plastic, but these metal troughs do not need to be replaced. Plastic troughs are not recommended due to the ease of spilling food and breaking the trough. Concrete is more durable than plastic but considerably more high maintenance. All in all, metal is your best bet.

When using feed bunks, alternative feeds are much more easily given, and farmers may choose to process hay, rather than feeding bales. Processing hay simply means chopping it. When hay is chopped, cattle aren't allowed to pick through the hay, ignoring areas of the bale. Since cows eat more of each bale, each bale lasts longer and farmers see less waste.

By using alternative feed, feed bunks, and conserver feeders, farmers can save close to a third of their existing resources, while saving time and money on extra trips to their local hay provider.

CITY OF FOREST GROVE WATERSHED

HARVESTING OF SELECTED TREES Bids Due 10:00 am, April 30, 2020 INVITATION TO BID PROJECT NO. 3524

Sealed bids for the harvesting of selected trees on the property known as the Forest Grove Watershed, will be received at the Engineering office, City of Forest Grove, 1928 Council Street, PO Box 326, Forest Grove, OR 97116, until BID CLOSING at 10:00 am on Thursday, April 30, 2020. No bid will be accepted after the BID CLOSING time. Bids will be opened and publicly read aloud at 2:00 pm on Thursday, April 30, 2020 in the Forest Grove Community Auditorium located at 1915 Main Street, Forest Grove, OR 97116.

Scheduled Tour:

There will be a tour of the sale area on Thursday, April 16, at 2:00 pm (meet at the Gales Creek Store on Highway 8). Bidders must visit the site before their bids will be accepted. Attendance at the tour is strongly recommended. If you are unable to attend the tour, please call Scott Ferguson at 503.539.9939 to arrange a time to see the sale area.

Project Description:

To harvest all of the merchantable timber designated and to be marked on Douglas-fir stands of 105 total acres, standing and being upon those certain lands known as the Forest Grove Watershed, portions of Sections 23 and 24, Township 1N, Range 5W, Washington County, State of Oregon. See the stand harvest information below and the attached map for more details. Trees are to be harvested May through September, 2020 as weather permits. The harvest is expected to yield approximately 1,700 MBF Douglas-fir.

84 acres of the harvest are in 105-year-old Douglas-fir stands with average merchantable volumes of 40 MBF per acre. 20 acres of these older stands will be patch-cut to remove most of the merchantable volume and 64 acres will be thinned to promote stand diversity and natural regeneration. 21 acres of the adjacent 60-year-old stands will be thinned to promote forest health. The terrain is favorable for ground-based logging on 88 acres. Cable yarding will be necessary on 11 acres of the older stand patch cuts and 6 acres of the older stand

105 Acres; Totals: 1,650 M Harvest Prescriptions:

Patch-Cuts: A total of 20 acres will be cut in seven (7) separate patches. Approximately 10% of the original stands will be retained. All retention trees will be marked with an "L" in blue paint. Patch-cut borders are marked with blue and pink flagging.

Heavy Variable Thinning: 64 acres of the 105-year-old Douglas-fir stands will be thinned to open up the canopy and promote natural fir regeneration and the establishment of a second age class. The method is to remove small patches of trees or individual trees in an irregular pattern. Trees will be selected from all size classes and will be marked with a horizontal band of blue paint. Approximately one third of the volume of the stand will be harvested.

Light Thinning: 21 acres of the younger, 60-year-old stands will be thinned to promote stand health and growth. Trees will be removed from the smaller size classes to favor the larger, healthier trees

Logging System:

This harvest is on terrain suitable for ground-based logging, with the exception of 11 acres of patch cuts and 6 acres of heavy variable thinning that will require cable yarding (see the detailed harvest layout map). The emphasis will be on quality logging and keeping stand impacts to a minimum. Shovel logging is preferred for the ground-based logging. Forwarding distances to roads and landings are generally less than 700 feet on the ground-logging areas, and less than 1,500 feet in the cable logging areas.Douglas-firpoleswillbemanufactured if the market is favorable.

Timber Cutting:

All trees will be bucked and limbed in the woods. There will be no machine processing at the landings. This is to protect the abundant natural regeneration of fir in the understory. Poles:

To provide incentive for the merchandizing of poles, the logger will be paid an extra $60 per MBF (above the sawlog for the volume graded as 65 to 120-foot poles by the buyer. The logger will be paid an extra $30 per MBF (above the sawlog rate) for the graded volume of poles less than 65 feet long. Markets and Log Merchandizing:

Most of this harvest will likely be cut into sawlog lengths. The average truck volume is expected to be approximately 5,600 to 5,800 board feet for the older stands, and 4,200 to 4,400 board feet for the younger stands, based on results from similar harvests in the watershed. Trees harvested in the older stands will have an estimated average DBH (diameter at breast height) of 26 to 28 inches.

Road Work:

Existing rocked roads provide good access. Three old dirt road grades (two were used 10 years ago) will be brushed and cleared by the logger to a condition suitable for hauling. This work will be included in the logging bid rate (on board truck rate).

Site Preparation:

Patch cut areas will require light site preparation (brush and slash piling). This work will be paid on an hourly machine rate basis (not included in logging rate).

Timing of Operations:

Work may commence as soon at the weather permits and must finish by September 30, 2020. Instructions for Submitting the Bid:

Mail or deliver one (1) copy of the bid, in a sealed envelope to the address identified in the first paragraph of this invitation. The bid must be submitted as
