Gay Talese's 'Voyeur's Motel' is a real turnoff

Don Oldenburg
Special for USA TODAY

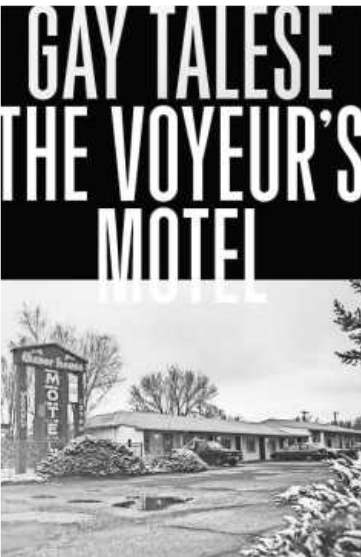

BOOK REVIEW

Early in Gay Talese's new book, The Voyeur's Motel (Grove Press, 240 pp., ★☆☆☆ out of four), the writer and

New Journalism pioneer recounts his first meeting with Gerald Foos, an unabashed peeping Tom. That evening, Talese followed Foos into a janitor's closet and up a ladder leading to the roadside Colorado motel's secret attic. It's where the perverted motelier had installed a soundproof observation crawlspace equipped with customized phony ceiling vents. Together, through one of those vents, they watched as a young couple made love.

Creepy? Hold that room-service call. Read on.

Long before Erin Andrews' stalker gave hotel peepholes a bad name, Foos had gone undetected more than three decades watching the sexual activities of thousands of guests. He often masturbated or had sex with his wife in the attic while ogling his victims. He scribbled graphic yet stiffly clinical notes in his journal, chronicling the sexual behaviors of young lovers, middle-age couples, lesbians, gays, gigolos, prostitutes, threesomes, cheaters, and on and on. Many of his observations are excerpted in this book.

After disavowing his book, author Gay Talese now says he stands by it.

Now, the entire book, scheduled to be published July 12, is in question after The Washington Post reported that property records show Foos sold the motel in 1980 and reacquired it in 1988. Talese told the paper he would not promote The Voyeur's Motel, first excerpted in The New Yorker, because its "credibility is down the toilet." Foos, however, says everything he told Talese is true even though he never disclosed the property transaction.

(Publisher Grove Press released a statement standing by the book, and Talese disavowed his disavowal: "Gerald Foos, as no one calls into question, was an epic voyeur, and, as I say very clearly in the text, he could also at times be an unreliable teller of his own peculiar story. When I spoke to the Washington Post reporter, I am sure I was surprised and upset about this business of the later ownership of the motel, in the '80s. That occurred after the bulk of the events covered in my book, but I was upset and probably said some things I didn't, and don't, mean. Let me be clear: I am not disavowing the book and neither is my publisher. If, down the line, there are details to correct in later editions, we'll do that.")

In 1980, during the pre-publication hoopla for Talese's acclaimed, sexually explosive Thy Neighbor's Wife, Foos sent the author an anonymous letter describing his voyeur habits, claiming he was chronicling America's changing sexual landscape from the '60s Sexual Revolution and on. He thought Talese might use some of it in a future book. Soon after, Talese visited the Manor House Motel in Aurora where he and Foos made several trips to the attic.

But Talese refused to publish non-fiction without naming names, and Foos feared the law and bankruptcy from civil suits, so it took 35 more years for the two of them to go public. Foos, 80, had retired and figured the statutes of limitations on his crimes had expired. Plus, he wanted recognition for what he believes is his earthshaking study of human sexuality.

Meanwhile, Foos claims he saw more than he ever envisioned:

robberies, violence, drug deals, incest, bestiality, sexual exploitation and rape. He says he even witnessed a murder — but cooperating fully with the cops would have jeopardized his secret life.

Ironically, what Foos hated most was when guests were dishonest with one another. To his credit, Talese confides that he was "deeply unsettled by the way (Foos) had violated his customers' trust and invaded their privacy." Still, Talese, now 84, could not stop looking ... or writing.

In the end, this book is no contribution to "social history," as Foos and Talese suggest. It is, at best, a lewd and licentious footnote to Talese's Thy Neighbor's Wife. Foos is nothing more than an arrogant, delusional jerk who believes his years of illegal activity have value and mistakes his attic as moral high ground.

The sad upshot: Foos and Talese are lurking kindred spirits. And Talese's journalistic rationale for writing this book sounds pathetically like saying you buy Playboy for the articles.

But wait, doesn't sex sell, even when it's sleazy? Steven Spielberg bought the rights to the book for a film adaptation to be directed by Sam Mendes, whose breakthrough film was ... American Beauty.

Public Transportation funding helps Texans get to work, school, health care facilities

$75 million will help meet public demand for mobility programs

The Texas Transportation Commission today awarded more than $75 million in federal and state funds to transit providers who offer transportation services to Texas veterans, seniors, people with disabilities and others who need help getting to work, school, health care facilities and other important destinations.

“Independence and quality of life for our state’s public transit users will be enhanced through this funding,” said TxDOT Executive Director James Bass. “We are grateful for the collaboration with our partners around the state who ultimately are helping us provide meaningful transportation solutions for Texans.”

The transit agencies supported by these mobility funds reported more than 34 million trips in 2014. Besides helping Texas transit users get to work, school and health care facilities, the awarded funds also will facilitate travel to community programs and other destinations. By providing park-and-ride commuter services, vanpools and other options for those who choose to commute via public transportation, the funds also help address congestion relief in rapidly growing areas.

In 2016, TxDOT has administered state and federal public transportation grant programs exceeding $130 million. Many of these awards also exceeds $10,000. Samples of the Certification and Notice to Subcontractors appear in the Specifications.

Women will be afforded equal opportunity in all areas of employment. However, the employment of women shall not diminish the standards or requirements for the employment of minorities.

For contracts of $50,000 or more, a contractor having 50 or more employees, and his subcontractors having 50 or more employees, who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more, will be required to maintain an affirmative action program within 120 days of the commencement of the contract.

Pre-award Equal Opportunity Compliance Reviews Where the bid of the apparent responsive responsible bidder is in the amount of $1 million or more, the bidder and his known subcontractors will be awarded subcontracts of $1 million or more will be subject to full on-site, pre-award equal opportunity compliance reviews before the award of the contract.

For contracts of $50,000 or more, a contractor having 50 or more employees, and his subcontractors having 50 or more employees, who may be awarded a subcontract of $50,000 or more, will be required to maintain an affirmative action program within 120 days of the commencement of the contract.

Compliance Reports Within 30 days after award of this contract, the contractor shall file a compliance report (Standard Form 100) if:

1. The Successful Bidder has not submitted a complete compliance report within 12 months preceding the date of award; and

2. The Successful Bidder is within the definition of "employer" in Paragraphs 2e(3) of the instructions included in Standard Form 100.

The Successful Bidder shall require the subcontractor on all-tier subcontracts, irrespective of dollar amount, to file Standard Form 100 within 30 days after award of the subcontract if the above two conditions apply. Standard Form 100 will be furnished upon request.

Bidders are hereby advised that the Owner, England Economic and Industrial Development District, has employed the services of Kazette Enterprises to administer the Disadvantaged Business Enterprise Program for this project. The DBE Administrator's address is: 1501A Wimbledon Boulevard, Alexandria, Louisiana 71301 and the telephone number is (318) 442-3593.
